ABSTRACT

This invention relates to a display method for query by tree search which method is to have several rows of symbols (such as alphabet or character) used for query appeared on display screen first; then to click one of said rows of symbols and the clicked rows of symbols are longitudinally arrayed as column and appeared on said display screen; after further to click the symbol going to be clicked, all words saved with the same initial as said symbol clicked are appeared on said display screen; and subsequently to click the queried word to show all information related to the queried word on said display screen.